You and Your Pets: Preparing for Disaster

MOBILE SPCA

Mobile Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals
620 Zeigler Circle West • Mobile, AL 36608

Published as a Public Service by the Mobile SPCA

FACT: Natural disasters such as hurricanes, tornadoes and wildfires are a fact of life in Mobile and often they occur with little advance notice. Other disasters such as hazardous spills usually strike without any warning.

FACT: If you must evacuate in the event of a disaster, then conditions are not only unsafe for you, but unsafe for other living creatures as well.

FACT: You may have the option of waiting out the storm in a public shelter, but your pet does not. Public shelters will not accept pets.

WHY PET OWNERS MUST PLAN

If you do not have a disaster plan and wait until the last minute to evacuate, your only choice for refuge will probably be a public shelter where pets are not welcome. If you leave your pets behind, you should prepare your children and other family members for the fact that their pets may not survive or may be lost forever before you are able or permitted to return to your home.

Frightened animals quickly slip out open doors, broken windows or damaged areas of your home left exposed by the storm. Released pets likely will die from exposure, starvation, predators, contaminated food or water, or be run over on roads where they also can endanger others. Even normally friendly animals of different species should not be allowed to remain together unattended because the stress of the storm may cause distinct behavioral changes.

 NEVER LEAVE YOUR PETS BEHIND TO FEND FOR THEMSELVES

Develop your written plan now

Having a written disaster plan may mean the difference between life - and death - for you and your pets.

In developing your written disaster plan, obtain evacuation information and preparedness guidelines from the Mobile Emergency Management Office. The office serving Mobile County can be reached by calling 460-8000.

In developing your plan:

- First, identify your evacuation zone and level to determine if - and when- you would have to evacuate. You can find evacuation route area maps which include storm surge zones. You also can find the information in the BellSouth Phone book listed under "Weather" or "Hurricane & Severe Weather Survival".

If you are located in a flood plain area, the decision to evacuate will depend on the category of the storm. In the case of a hurricane, always prepare for one category higher than the one being forecast because a hurricane often increases in strength just before making landfall.

Remember: All mobile home residents must evacuate in the event of a hurricane, regardless of location.

- Pick a safe location as close to home as possible as your evacuation site. Long-distance evacuation is not recommended because highways will be crowded. Friends and relatives in a safe area are your best choice. An alternative might be hotels or motels outside the area which are "pet friendly." Check their policies on accepting pets, and any restrictions on number, size or species. Call ahead for reservations.

If you cannot find a safe refuge for you and your pets together, arrange shelter for the animals at a veterinarian office or boarding kennel close to your evacuation location so that you can have as much contact with the pets as possible. You and your pets will fare better if you are together as much as possible. Do not forget to check storm surge zones (listed above) to make sure that the veterinarian office or boarding kennel is in a safe area.

Remember: The Mobile Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals is not an evacuation site for pets in the event of a weather emergency.

 A WRITTEN DISASTER PLAN WILL HELP YOU AND YOUR PETS SURVIVE.

Be aware and prepare

Begin preparations before the hurricane season which runs June 1 through November 30. You can't be too prepared when the lives of your loving and faithful companions are at stake. A checklist will help you remember to:

- Make sure all your pets have current immunizations and get copies of these records. Take a copy with you if you must evacuate.
- Photograph each of your pets every year and include these pictures with your immunization records an/or in the space provided on the "Pet Identification" page of this brochure. Make sure to take the photos with you if you must evacuate.
- Take first aid and cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR) courses and keep the manuals handy. The same basic principles apply to animals. The Mobile SPCA periodically offers pet first aid seminars. If you cannot attend, ask your vet for an emergency care pamphlet for animals.

- Include a pet first aid kit in your pet survival kit (see back page of this brochure for contents of a pet survival kit.)
- Make sure all your pets have a secure carrier (or collapsible cage for large dogs) as well as collars, leashes and identification tags. Carriers should be large enough for the animals to stand comfortably and turn around. Let your pets become familiar with their carriers ahead of time so they will feel secure and comfortable in case they have to live in them for days - or even weeks - after the storm.
- Mark all your pets' belongings with their identification as well as yours.
- Put together a pet survival kit with the items suggested on the back page of this brochure.
- If you plan to shelter your pets at a kennel or clinic, call before evacuating to determine if space is available. Allow sufficient time to travel from the kennel to your evacuation location after making certain that your animals are secure. Again, remember to check the storm surge zone maps in the phone book to make sure that the kennel or clinic is in a safe evacuation area.
- If you have an exotic pet, contact local pet stores located in a safe area for assistance in sheltering your pet. Again, be prepared to supply appropriate housing (not glass) for the pet, and other supplies necessary to sustain the pet for at least two weeks.
- Be sure to include sufficient food and potable water to last at least two weeks for all your pets. Store pet food and medications in watertight containers in a cool, dry and dark place. If your water source becomes contaminated, you can purify it by adding two drops of household bleach per quart of water, then mix and seal tightly, and let stand 30 minutes before drinking.

Any facility you choose to house your pets should be operated by knowledgeable and capable staff, located in a high and dry area, and of sturdy construction with hurricane shutters.

Remember: Throughout the evacuation and the storm, your pets will need reassurance from you. Remain calm, keep as close to their normal routine as possible, and speak to them often in a calm, reassuring voice.

 ADVANCE PREPARATION WILL HELP YOU AND YOUR PETS
EVACUATE EARLY - AND SAFELY - IN THE EVENT OF AN IMPENDING DISASTER.

If you can stay at home

It is just as important to adequately plan for your pets even if you do not have to evacuate. Carriers, collars with proper identification, and leashes should be maintained for your pets at all times. Your pets will be most comfortable and secure in their carriers in a safe area of your home until the storm has passed. If they are not secured during the storm and your house is damaged, your pets may escape and become disoriented since normal landmarks and scent trails could be obliterated. If your pets become lost, proper ID will help to ensure their return to you.

Remember: If you bring plants into the home before a storm, be careful not to allow pets access to them since many ornamental plants are poisonous.

Surviving after the storm

Proceed with caution, and watch for downed and dangling power lines and other debris which pose real dangers to you and your pets. Check your food and water supply for contamination. If you are without power, be extremely careful using candles or oil lamps, particularly around pets. Never leave candles or oil lamps unattended.

Walk your pets on a leash until they become re-oriented to their home.
